

How can I search my Tools database for a color close to a new color standard?

Tools QC has a search utility which can be used to help you identify measurements stored in its database which are colorimetrically close to a new color standard. You can set the parameters of this search. The Search option will return measurement names and their measurements so that you might then put them on the Tools desktop to further evaluate them against the new standard.

Author: Datacolor

Saved From: <http://knowledgebase.datacolor.com/article-647.html>